Tile Redi's Base'N Bench shower kits are specifically sized to fit the footprint of the bathtub to be removed, making installation simple, according to the company.

Users are instructed to measure the length and depth of the shower space, note the drain location and then choose the corresponding model. The shower pan and shower bench are sized to work together, creating a new designer shower.

"Redi Bench will fit the selected shower pan, and when built into the overall design, will provide a safe place when one is using the shower. All components offer the industry-leading Tile Redi brand features that have always been synonymous with fast and easy installation and, no leaks," the company said.
